

MAY 24, 2016

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE: LAW AND POLICY

The White House
University of Washington School of Law
Tech Policy Lab

W

SCHOOL OF LAW
UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

TECH POLICY LAB
UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

PUBLIC WORKSHOP WILLIAM H. GATES HALL / ROOM 138

LIVE STREAM AVAILABLE

1:30 PM WELCOME REMARKS

Kellye Testy

UW School of Law Dean and President, Association of American Law Schools

Ed Felten

White House Deputy Chief Technology Officer

2:00 PM STATE OF AI

Oren Etzioni

CEO, Allen Institute for Artificial Intelligence

2:30 PM BREAK

2:40 PM PANEL ONE: ARTIFICIAL WISDOM

The first panel concerns the use of AI to make decisions of consequence to citizens, consumers, and others. The panel will explore: whether and how to design greater accountability and fairness into AI; how to properly interpret AI mechanisms and outputs; and the ways our desire for compassion and judgment connects to concerns over human limitations and biases.

Deirdre Mulligan (moderator)

Associate Professor, UC Berkeley School of Information

Kate Crawford

Principal Researcher, Microsoft Research, Senior Research Fellow, NYU ILI

Jack Balkin

Professor, Yale Law School

Camille Fischer

National Economic Council

3:40 PM BREAK

3:50 PM PANEL TWO: EMBODYING DATA

The second panel builds on the insights of the first, moving beyond the pure information landscape into physical and other real-world systems. The panel will explore: how to assess the safety and validity of autonomous systems, including driverless cars, drones, and weapons; and the potential role of the government of channeling safe and sustainable AI through funding, procurement, and regulation.

Ryan Calo (moderator)

Assistant Professor, UW School of Law & Co-Director UW Tech Policy Lab

Pedro Domingos

Professor, UW Computer Science and Engineering

Bryant Walker Smith

Assistant Professor, University of South Carolina

Terah Lyons

Office of Science and Technology Policy

4:50 PM REFLECTIONS AND NEXT STEPS

John Markoff (moderator)

New York Times

Ed Felten

White House Deputy Chief Technology Officer

Ryan Calo

Assistant Professor, UW School of Law & Co-Director UW Tech Policy Lab

5:05 PM RECEPTION

William H. Gates Hall / Room 115

