

YOU HAVE LEGAL RIGHTS

Workers have legal protections against sexual harassment at work, regardless of citizenship or document status. If you witness harassment against yourself or someone else, it's important to get help. By calling Northwest Justice Project at 1-800-201-1018, you can confidentially report sexual harassment, assault, or other work-related legal issues, and receive legal advice and support.

“NO ME QUEDARÉ CALLADA” IS A PROJECT OF:

WASHINGTON LEADERSHIP INSTITUTE

NORTHWEST JUSTICE PROJECT

WASHINGTON COALITION TO ELIMINATE FARMWORKER SEXUAL HARASSMENT

WESTERN WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

CREATED IN 2018

NO ME, QUEDARÉ CALLADA

CONTACT DETAILS

NORTHWEST JUSTICE PROJECT

1-800-201-1018

Isabel, mija, what is wrong? Have you been crying? Did something happen at work?

Mama, I'm so embarrassed...Last week, my boss made me take my clothes off – he said I needed to prove I wanted to keep my job.

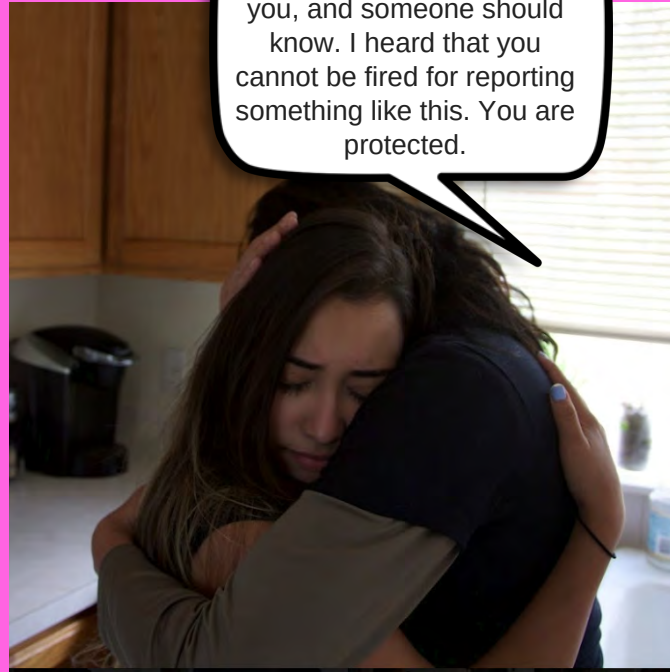

We were the only two people at the plant, and I was scared that if I said no he would hurt me or fire me. It's happened 2 other times since then.

Oh, honey. You don't need to feel embarrassed. I'm so glad you told me. Have you told anyone else?

No, they will fire me! And then what will we do? We need food, we need to pay rent. I'm too scared.

Isabel, you did nothing wrong. Your boss is hurting you, and someone should know. I heard that you cannot be fired for reporting something like this. You are protected.

We need to try. I heard of a place you can call safely and report things like this. At least you can just get a little information.